

Bessie Mae (Brooks) Flint

February 12, 1954 - December 28, 2023

"What A Way To End A Journey"

What a way to end this journey what a way to finish this life
When we step off into that city free of worldly pain and strife What a way to end lifes journey when we step on streets of gold The splendor we have read about oh, the half has never been told Meeting Jesus and our love ones abiding in that city forevermore
No more worry, pain nor sorrow will ever enter the heavenly door Beholding walls, made of jasper and a crystal sea flowing near by Each day seeing something new beauty never seen by human eye We'll behold the many treasures with eyes that'll never hold tears Basking in the glory of the Lord for millions and millions of years

“ Bessie is one I will never forget.
She found me online somehow about 20 or so years ago ,and is a distant cousin to my mother (Mildred Buis) she always encouraged and uplifted me in the Lord and even gave me a beautiful poem, she had wrote. I lost her phone number some years ago and ahe was no longer in FB . So, I always wondered about her from time to time and said a prayer for her. I knew she was busy taking care of her husband Frank at the time and she was starting to lose her eye sight more. Have a wonderful birthday 70th in heaven Bessie, praise our Lord and savior.
I'll met you there in that Sweet Beulah Land my dear friend!

“ She and my mother always were like sisters together. I remember Aunt Bessie saying (when she was pregnant with my cousin born 11 days after I was and mom was pregnant with me) that she and my mom were racing to see who'd give birth first.
I'll remember Bessie's sense of humor most. She was good for a quip. There's a couple of really great quotes about a particular brother-in-law or hers that I remember.
She was also a great source of family history and advice when I restarted my genealogy research years ago.

“ Aunt Bessie was the only person I ever met the could turn what most would consider trash into pieces of art , I really can't remember ever walking in her house to find the furniture in the same place each Time . I'm going to miss her contagious smile , love, and warmth she always made you feel welcome in her home

“ I think my earliest memory of Aunt Bessie is from a family trip to Virginia/Tennessee when I was a kid. She was my aunt but close to me in age, and I thought she was beautiful. She had the most beautiful eyes and spirit. I remember being happy when she moved to live near us in Kansas--primarily to be close to her sisters. She always seemed to have a light heart, no matter the circumstances. I moved away and didn't get to see her as much as I would have liked over the years, but I often thought about her. May she rest in peace.
